The Regents of UC have recently approved a major cardiovascular research program, jointly sponsored by the J. David Gladstone Foundation and the School of Medicine, to be located at SFGH Medical Center. This program, expected to be in operation in 1978, will investigate the basic problems of blood vessels in an attempt to understand the causes of atherosclerosis (hardening of the arteries), according to Julius R. Krevans, Dean of the School of Medicine, and Charles E. Windsor, Executive Administrator, SFGH and Deputy Director of Health Care Services for San Francisco. The J. David Gladstone Foundation, established by the will of the late Mr. Gladstone, a businessman-philanthropist of Beverly Hills, has as its

The School of Nursing became part of the University of California system in 1939 after having served as a training school for nurses from 1907, following the San Francisco earthquake. The school is one of the few in the U.S. to offer a Doctor of Nursing Science degree, a program that was established in 1965. In recent years, the UCSF School of Nursing has ranked among the top three nursing schools in the country.

ultimate goal the discovery of methods to prevent or reduce the incidence of arterial disease, now the nation's major killer through heart attacks and strokes. By creating a joint program with the UCSF Cardiovascular Research Institute and SFGH Medical Center, the Foundation will advance its long range goals in research. The program will also provide a means for exchange of information between the Foundation, the SFGH medical staff, and the CVRI. The medical investigators will have access to all University facilities such as the medical libraries, x-ray equipment, electron microscopes, instrumentation, cyclotron and computer technology.

reaching out to such diverse, and seemingly unrelated, fields as obstetrics and biochemistry.

The activities of the endocrinology center focus on teaching as well as research. It currently has positions for five doctoral and 14 postdoctoral fellows, who beside their regular coursework and research, are encouraged to attend the Center's daily conferences, seminars and colloquia. Doctoral and postdoctoral fellowships and a Visiting Scientist Fellowship are available on a competitive basis from a Rockefeller Foundation grant. Faculty members include: Pentii K. Siiteri, Robert B. Jaffe, Harold Papkoff, Richard Weiner, Mitchell S. Golbus, Mary Beth Glendening, Bernard Gondos, Robert W. Kuhn, Scott E. Monroe, James M. Roberts, Philip G. Hoffman, Jr., Carolyn Connell, Paul Goldsmith, and Maria Seron-Ferre.
